

Amoghavarsha

Bangalore, India
+91-9901044344
mail@amoghavarsha.com

Profile

Wildlife photographer and Naturalist Amoghavarsha has travelled extensively throughout India, documenting the country's bio-diversity and helping conserve through his images. He has photographed the thick evergreens of Arunachal to the Barren landscapes of Ladakh to the western ghats in south India. Having worked as naturalist, he loves telling stories about the natural world with his photographs. Hailing from a technology background and makes use of new media to help spread the message of conservation. He has worked with many media organizations to carry out conservation messages and conducts photo-workshops and expeditions from time to time and believes education is the first step in conservation.

Experience

- Has freelanced with many media organizations and publications working on wildlife, travel and conservation issues.
- Works with CEE (Center for Environment Education) and the Forest Dept. on conservation and education projects, including setting up of Information centers, conducting educational programs and providing content for publications on nature and wildlife.
- Worked with Felis creations, a wildlife film and photography company as a photographer and cameraman for the National Geographic movie - "Secrets of the King Cobra"
- Photographs and Articles have been published in magazines and coffee table books including Karnataka Govt publication "Wild Vistas"
- Works have been published in many international forums, like WWF Calendars, National Geographic and other Indian forums.
- Has conducted over 50 photography workshops and expeditions across India for Individuals and companies.
- Worked as a part time naturalist in one of the deciduous jungles of south india and has participated in many govt. organized census and surveys of animals and birds, including tiger census and bird survey.
- Has been part of the team which documented the Volvo Ocean Race.
- Has worked with Microsoft research on the cutting edge Digital Narratives media project.
- Has freelanced for many travel organizations including "Mahindra Holidays".

Portfolio

Website -> www.amoghavarsha.com

Portfolio -> www.amoghavarsha.com/photographs/portfolio/